June 1 - 5 "Reading Can Take You Anywhere" Join us for a week of fantastic stories which can take you through our universe and beyond. We will feature a story/author from each continent as well as those which have imagined the outer limits. We will also practice culturally accurate storytelling techniques from each continent including patterning, rhyming, drawing the story, singing the story, dramatically acting out the story, and involving audience participation in telling the story!

June 8 -12 "Just the Facts, Kid" This week gives respect to the awesome powers of nonfiction books, including biography, autobiography, and factual children’s literature. We’ll diverge daily into research skills, but bounce back into telling the true story about some amazing books! We’ll also consider the joys of useful and entertaining books which serve the purpose of educating kids regarding engineering, art and sometimes truly icky science.

June 15 - 19 "Best Loved Book Characters: Who Do You Love?" We will explore characterization, anthropomorphism, and societal/emotional learning through children’s book characters. We may take a side trip into books with NO WORDS, sound effects, and thought bubbles ala comics. Express yourself: just what is it that makes a superhero super? Come prepared to answer! Perhaps you can create your own superhero, or just dress as a favorite book character for Fun Friday.

June 22 – 26 "Creepy Crawly Stories" Join us for a week celebrating arthropods. Through stories, lessons, crafts, and games we will learn about insects, arachnids, and crustaceans. We will also take a look at Eric Carle’s books and illustrations since he wrote a lot about this topic. On Friday we will have an event with Perkiomen Watershed Conservancy about insects.

July 6 – 10 "Once Upon a Time" This week campers will enjoy traditional and fractured fairy tales. What is a fractured fairy tale? According to The True Story of the Three Little Pigs, the wolf will tell you he isn’t big and bad. He just had allergies and blew the pigs house down. Campers will extend the stories through drama, crafts, cooking, and science! Friday’s fun activity will be a drama presentation.

July 13 - 17 "A Seussical Adventure" From there to here, from here to there, funny things are everywhere! This week will be about the magical books of Dr. Seuss and his crazy characters. We will end the week with a Silly Seuss magic show.

July 20 -24 "Beatrix Potter Observers of Nature" This week we will learn to observe natural details, sketch and watercolor in the style of Beatrix Potter. Beatrix Potter began illustrating at a very early age by observing animals and landscapes in nature. We will spend time observing outdoors, sketching, reading Beatrix Potter stories and trying different ways to create watercolor paintings in this fun and creative camp.

July 27 - 31 "The Secrets of Paper Makery" This week we will be learning about the process of writing, illustrating and publishing a children’s picture book. Campers will read, paint, sculpt, cook and dance their way through unique stories that will make them hungry for more good books! Throughout the week we will explore what inspires illustrator/author Oliver Jeffers. He is the author of the Incredible Book Eating Boy, Stuck, An Alphabet of Stories, How to Catch a Star, and many more wonderful children’s books.

August 3 - 7 "Give Bees a Chance" This week we will put on our brave faces and get up close and personal with children’s book author/illustrator Bethany Barton. She is the author of I’m Trying to Love Math, Give Bees a Chance, I’m Trying to Love Spiders and many more. The mission of her books to help kids (and grown-ups too) face their fears using superpowers like facts and humor. Through writing, art and drama activities, campers will challenge some of their own fears and find ways to make those seemingly big fears feel much, much smaller with facts-based information!
